RAIL MERGERS ARE ADVOCATED BY COMMITTEE

Non-Partisan Unit Urges Elimination of Wasteful Competition

BLAMES CARRIERS FOR THEIR PLIGHT

Al Smith Agrees Largely But Has Other Comment On Situation

CLAUDE A. JAGGER, Associated Press Financial Editor. NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—Railroad managements found today that much of the responsibility for the financial plight of America's $20,000,000,000 rail system had been placed squarely on their own doorstep by the report of the national transportation committee.

This non-partisan committee, which conducted a sweeping investigation of the transportation problem at the behest of savings bank, insurance companies and other large investors urged drastic measures toward consolidation, eliminating wasteful competition.

Estimate Savings "It had been estimated on good authority," said the report, "that several hundred million dollars, or enough to pay interest on a large part of the outstanding railroad bonds, can be saved."

The committee found some justice in railroads' complaint that they have been hamstrung by inept regulation, but reported a "tendency to over-emphasize this argument." Declaring regulation has "left something to be desired, the report added:

"The railroads should do much that they have not done to improve their condition without any government help at all. They should be promptly freed of all unnecessary restrictions on the doing of it."

"It has been estimated that less than a 20 per cent increase in traffic would put most of them on an earnings basis. In view of the narrowness of this margin of loss, and the very great savings possible in railroad operation, we regard the outlook as far from hopeless."

With the perfection of regulation, and the appearance of competing forms of transport, the committee held the government should abandon its old policy of fostering artificial competition among the railroads.

Hits Costs Assumption Furthermore, the committee said government assumption of "all or part of the costs of inefficient competing transport as a defense against monopoly is no longer warranted and should be abandoned."

It called attention to average expenditure of about $100,000,000 annually on inland waterways in the past few years and found "no commensurate economic benefits."

The report, issued last night, was signed by Bernard M. Baruch, who succeeded the late Calvin Coolidge as chairman; by Clark Howell and Alexander Legge.

Alfred E. Smith, while stating that he was in substantial agreement with the greater part of the supplementary memorandum, "placing the emphasis where I think it belongs."

Smith expressed himself vigorously on consolidation, saying, "I am convinced that the fundamental problem of the railroads is that of nationwide consolidation and reorganization to reduce costs and

LINCOLN TOPIC AT CLUB MEET

Travelers Hear Talk On Emancipator by Atty H. L. McCarthy

"The secret of Abraham Lincoln's success may be said to have been his ability to use great common sense in approaching any problem," declared Atty H. L. McCarthy in a tribute to Lincoln during an address to members of the Travelers club Tuesday afternoon at the Memorial building. "Lincoln's common sense made possible the great purpose of his life—the emancipation of the slaves—the preservation of the union," the speaker asserted.

"Long before he became president he was known as 'Honest Abe,' and one of his greatest tasks as president was to convince those about him that he was still 'Honest Abe.' He triumphed in the end where a man of fewer attainments would have failed," McCarthy said.

Man of the People "Abraham Lincoln was not a pre-eminent statesman. He was not a genius; nor had nature endowed him with the vision of a seer. He was a man of the people and believed in the homely virtues of life. His humble origin, the hardships of his early life and his struggles with his own inner self had taught him that simplicity, humility, honesty and fidelity were the virtues which mark the really good man and aid him in solving the perplexing problems of this life."

"Lincoln was not a saint, and yet during the trying period of the Civil war he displayed a lofty moral courage. This was not affectation nor

Celebration Is Planned Tonight by People of Miami

(By Associated Press) MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 15.—President-elect Roosevelt returns from the freedom of the southern seas tonight to plunge into the presidential problems confronting him little more than two weeks hence.

He has fixed his policies for the "new deal." Between now and March 4, he will determine finally the key men upon whom he will depend to carry out his program.

Upon his return here late today, it is understood the president-elect will confer with James M. Cox, the 1920 Democratic presidential nominee, who sounded the call last Saturday for support of the congressional plan to give Roosevelt extraordinary power to cut government expenditures by complete reorganization.

A real celebration is planned for Roosevelt by the people of Miami as he debarks tonight from his 11 days on the south Atlantic.

Miami citizens have arranged an automobile trip through the city for the next presidential enroute to his train, which departs for New York at 10 p. m. (E. S. T.). A stop at Bay Front Park is planned for Roosevelt.

Slayer Sentenced To Penitentiary

(By Associated Press) DAYTON, Feb. 15.—Virgil Dackin, 28, Grand Rapids, Ohio, convicted by a jury here last week of manslaughter in connection with the holdup and fatal shooting of A. W. Dare, 57, manager of a shoe store, on December 24, last, was sentenced to an indeterminate term in the Ohio penitentiary by Judge Robert C. Patterson in common pleas court today.

The court of appeals meeting here March 2 is to rule on a habeas corpus writ filed by Dackin's attorneys, by which they seek to gain his freedom. They contend a manslaughter verdict brought by the jury is not in keeping with the indictment, which charges murder during commission of a robbery.

Dackin still faces a term in the penitentiary as a violator of a parole.

Clarkson French Still Humane Officer, He Announces

PROTESTS ACTION BY CITY COUNCIL

Asserts Municipal Body Can't Do Away With Job

Clarkson S. French, North Ellsworth ave., county and city humane officer, today continued to serve in that position despite action by city council Tuesday night tending to abolish the position.

The post of humane officer was not mentioned in the appropriation ordinance enacted Tuesday night. Consequently no funds for salary which is $240 annually, were appropriated.

French, taking exception to council's action, said that the municipal body has no power to go away with the post, as it is under the jurisdiction of the civil service commission and that the office of humane officer was created by the Ohio constitution.

Didn't Make Job, Says French "City council," French stated, "has no power to discontinue an office it did not create."

French planned to confer with Mayor John M. Davidson on the matter some time today. He has been serving as Salem humane officer since early in 1926 and was named county officer November 26, the same year, through appointment by Probate Judge Lodge Riddle.

French works under jurisdiction also of the Salem Humane Society of which George W. Russell, former mayor, president, and E. F. Stratton is secretary-treasurer.

Studies Ordinance Mayor Davidson meanwhile continued his study of the ordinance approved by council members Tuesday night which, in addition to abolishing French's job, also effected 10 per cent salary reductions for city employees and those holding appointive offices.

While in college he was prominent in dramatic and literary societies. The church here has been making progress under the leadership of Rev. Wright, and several weeks ago a class of 12 was confirmed.

Rev. Wright is a native of Akron and came here from that city. His mother, Mrs. Florence Wright, who makes her home with him, and a group from the local church, attended the ordination service.

Warren Speakeasy Damaged by Bomb

(By Associated Press) WARREN, O., Feb. 15.—A bomb planted in the doorway of a speakeasy here today wrecked the interior of the place and caused several thousand dollars damage to business hours in the neighborhood.

The speakeasy, which was raided and dismantled six times by D. H. Birrell during his term as prosecuting attorney, is located in the flat district.

The explosion broke windows in buildings for a block each way and shook the entire city. A grocery store across the street suffered much damage to its stock when the front windows crashed in.

No one was injured.

The program included a piano duet by Mrs. G. P. Coker and Mrs. C. K. Detmore; vocal solos by William Banks, song and dance numbers by Billie Hanna, vocal selections by Mrs. L. W. King and a clarinet solo by Doris King and clarinet duets by Charlotte King and Jane Shaw.

The function was held as a "family party" by the Elks' auxiliary with more than 200 persons attending. Lunch was an added feature.

The entertainment was in charge of Mrs. C. A. Bumbaugh, auxiliary president, assisted by Mrs. Covert, program committee chairman; Mrs. Irene Galbreath of the social committee, and Mrs. Lloyd Gibbons, ticket committee.

Westville Dam Valve Breaks; Sink Sandbags to Keep Fish

Million Gallons of Water Probably Will Be Lost Before Repairs Can Be Made

Water was being drained from a section of Westville lake, north of the Georgetown rd., today as plans were being made by the municipal waterworks department of Alliance for repairs to a broken valve discovered in the dam Tuesday.

Water at the lake today was reported to have dropped six feet within 24 hours, the broken valve, located underneath the dam, permitting an extraordinarily large flow of water into the Mahoning river.

No Overflow Danger Fears that properties near the lake on the North Georgetown road would be damaged by the overflow of water were allayed in announcements by John O. Stanley, Alliance waterworks superintendent, who said there is no danger of any serious overflow from the river.

Efforts are now being made to conserve the supply of fish in the lake. Two bridges cross the body of water on the North Georgetown rd. and bales of straw and bags of sand were being lowered at these points today to prevent the escape of fish.

Stanley said the body of water west of the North Georgetown rd. will be permitted to flow dry after which it will be possible to make repairs.

Ohio Slayer Must Die Next Friday

(By Associated Press) CANTON, O., Feb. 15.—Herbert Meeker of Millersburg must die in the electric chair at Ohio State penitentiary Friday unless his attorneys carry his case before the state supreme court and succeed in winning a stay of execution there.

The court of appeals yesterday denied a rehearing on a motion for a new trial for the killing of his wife, Gertrude, at Millersburg, last May 8. It refused a stay of execution and rebuked Meeker's attorney for the method in which he sought the delay.

The court's only notice of the petition for rehearing was obtained through newspapers, it informed the attorney, who gave no indication of plans to carry the fight to the supreme court.

Tiffin Speaker Urges Rotarians To "Buy American"

Importing of commodities which can be made, mined or grown in America should cease, as a measure of relief for the economic unemployment crisis in this country, J. P. Kerchner of Tiffin told Rotary club members Tuesday.

Kerchner, speaking in behalf of the "Buy American" movement, said the American laborer is being kept idle because of unfair importation of merchandise manufactured by pauper labor and aided by a depreciated foreign currency. "We don't have to import pottery, matches, rugs, electric light bulbs, jewelry, leather goods, etc.," he said, "because all are made in America."

Every time such an item is purchased bearing the stamp of foreign manufacture, another thrust has been made at the work and industry of those who are trying to put American men back to work, Kerchner added.

At an open forum discussion following his talk, the speaker answered several questions. "If the 'Buy American' movement creates a national consciousness, it will be worth the effort," he concluded.

Kerchner was introduced by Wilbur J. Springer.

SECURE IN A JOB

Governor White makes a wise suggestion in urging that all employers honestly able to do so follow the example of many others in letting their employees know that their jobs are safe.Fear of unemployment has been one of the distressing incidents of the depression. Some may argue that this uncertainty puts the employee in a competitive mood to do his best in order to make a good showing if the time comes when there is to be a reduction in the number of employees. The argument is fallacious for no man can do his best work when he is worrying over the possibility that he may be laid off.Everything indicates that employment is definitely on the upgrade. Most industries have adapted themselves to the new conditions.
Many are branching out into new lines which promise to increase activities.A frank talk about such things would be the surest means of restoring stability among the employees of any firm. If the assurance can be given that jobs are safe and the prospects for the future are hopeful, workmen will be in the mood to do their share toward bringing back better times.The man whose future is safe will be more inclined to spend his earnings along normal lines with an eye to the future and there will be just that much more help in bringing back prosperity and industrial well-being.

A PARTY'S PLEDGE

President Hoover speaks for the nation in calling upon the Republican party to support the new Democratic administration in all of its constructive policies.Such a speech as he delivered at the Lincoln birthday banquet in New York as hedged about with reservations for the definition of the word "constructive" is subject to many interpretations. It may be regarded, however, as an honest and sincere expression of a desire to help the incoming president and congress work out the country's economic salvation. President Hoover is still the spokesman for the Republican party. Thinking people, regardless of partisanship, recognize his defeat of last November as a protest against economic conditions and no president ever met reputation of the electorate with such certainty that the goodwill of the people remains with him.It is questionable whether the President's appeal will have lasting effect. Good intentions have a way of disappearing under the stress of combat in the legislative halls but in any event it is a good start and a rather inspiring appeal to his party to put aside the strict interpretation of partisanship in the interests of the good of the country.At the same time, President Hoover sets forth as his own idea of constructive policy some orthodox Republican doctrines. Maintenance of the gold standard, he says, is necessary for America and advantage for the rest of the world.
Naturally, then, the proposal advanced by certain Democratic leaders in favor of the old Bryan theories for the advancement of silver is not constructive, in the opinion of President Hoover.Many other questions of this kind will arise and the new administration will continue to split many times on party lines. The President's words, however, come gracefully. They reflect the entire absence of ill-feeling and disappointment which has characterized his utterances since the election. They are sound and they are inspiring.
In a large measure they reflect the feeling of the great mass of Americans that the new president and those who serve with him must have the support of all the people in their program for rehabilitationof the country's economic structure.
President-elect Roosevelt came into office with a thundering mandate from the ballot box. Such an expression demands a cooperative spirit from both parties. The Democrats, being in overwhelming majority, face the responsibility of advancing the proposals for readjustment. The Republicans in official life have the same responsibility of giving these problems their honest thought without partisan bias, of supporting measures which they believe are good, of opposing measures which they hor-ribly believe are unsound and of advancing their own proposals with the same duty incumbent on the Democrats of giving the same honest consideration to the views of the minority.Such an arrangement sounds a little too Utopian to fit in with the ordinary picture of the way politics handles public affairs but President Hoover's speech is not the ordinary political utterance. It is received in the hope that his party will accept his leadership in the interest of the nation's good.

"Sun Conscious" in Winter

In the movies the other night was a news reel showing pictures of tubercular children almost unclad running around in the deep snow.
These children gave every evidence that they were happy, well nourished and enjoying their play in the snow and sun. I was amused when I heard a lady sitting behind me remark "It is shameful to expose those children to the cold."Many years ago Rollier, an eminent Swiss doctor, discovered that children and adults suffering from tuberculosis benefited greatly when exposed to the direct rays of the sun. This practice has been carried on for years during the summer and winter months. Science now recognizes the curative value of the sun in tuberculosis and other ailments.

Benefits of Sunlight

During the summer months we are all more or less "sun conscious".
Perhaps it is because we are anxious to acquire a coat of tan. I am sure most of my readers will agree that a coat of tan is healthy looking and gives one a sense of well being.
Unfortunately, during the winter months weather conditions discourage sun bathing and we neglect its beneficial rays.Children suffer more than adults
as they are deprived of sunshine.
Sunlight gives the body an adequate supply of vitamin D. When this particular vitamin is lacking the child is unable to build strong bones and teeth. Even though a child suffers from lack of the proper food, it will not develop rickets if sufficiently exposed to the sunlight.Within recent years children have benefited by taking cod liver oil during the winter months. This oil contains vitamin D, essential to proper growth and development. It takes the place of the beneficial rays of the sun which are kept from the child by weather, clouds, window glass and an excess of clothing.In addition to vitamin D, cod liver oil contains an abundance of vitamin A. This is the vitamin which helps children grow and builds up their resistance against infection and disease. This vitamin prevents one of the serious diseases of the eyes.Cod liver oil may be given to the infant as early as the fourth week.
Begin by giving a half teaspoon twice a day. In six weeks, increase the amount to one teaspoon twice a day, and by the end of three months, one and one-half teaspoons twice a day. At about the fourth month, give two teaspoons of cod liver oil twice a day and continue this during the first two years.Too little attention is given to the importance of outdoor life during the winter. We are inclined to remain indoors, near the fireside.
There is no doubt that children and adults would benefit by continued outdoor activities in winter months, as in summer.

A New Bismarck

With the appointment of this gentleman to the post of Secretary of State at the Prussian Ministry of the Interior, the famous name of Bismarck once more figures in German politics. He is Herbert von Bismarck, a grand-nephew of Count
von Bismarck, the celebrated "Iron Chancellor," who is regarded as the founder of the German Empire.
Bismarck died in 1898.NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—Many writers, in a funk over the increasing droop of the world's literary markets, have been heartened by a new avenue of activity, that is, the writing of radio scripts. First to invade the field was Octavus Roy Cohen, signed up for 20 weeks.So great are his duties and so grand the emolument, he will be forced to preclude other writing endeavors during the period of his contract. Advertising agencies are angling for other established writers, and such fancy salaries as $50-000 a year, and up, are being offered.One of the difficulties of radio artists is not so much in deliverance of material, but in the matterial itself and the continuity. It has been proved time after time that the radio stuff of the finished writer is more acceptable than that of the inexperienced author.The technique is not mastered easily. It has more pronounced fundamentals than playwrighting. A line that sparkles from the stage and screen may be broadcast with no reaction. There is an element of precise timing that has a split second significance. That's the trick.Grace George and her effervescent daughter-in-law, Alice Brady, I am told, were for years aloof in their relations but, thrown together in a recent co-starring, they became constant companions. There were repeated stories, mostly vag-aries of press agents, that the Roger Brothers and also Weber and Fields did not speak off-stage. Perhaps the only actually true story concerned the Russell Brothers, an Irish team of 20 years ago. For seven years they never spoke save in their cross-fire patter.Due to the illness of a regular chauffeur, a substitute was obtained. For many months he had had not employment, and never have I seen a person so grateful for a chance to earn a little money,
at the end of the first week, we arrived home late. Two children, silently weeping, stood in the shadows of the entrance. "Mother," they told him, "is very ill." An hour later, he phoned that she had passed on. "It's crushing," he said.
"But I'll come through somehow." There's a lot of fine courage like that in this grimly taut world.

two years the life of the state reof certain types of relief bonds. The measures, previously approved by freely crisp currency always was in

"THE LOVE TRAP"

by ROBERT TERRY SHANNON

COPYRIGHT BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

SYNOPSIS

Shortly after her mother's death, Mary Kennedy, young and pretty stenographer decides to live her own life and avoid the poverty she has always known. She rents a small room and then seeks a position. Mary meets Buck Landers, elderly sports promoter, who proposes to her. She does not love Landers, but his wealth attracts her.

Without waiting for Mary's decision, Landers presents her with a diamond ring. He threatens anyone who comes between them.

Mary meets Landers' ward, Steve Moore, young college graduate.

Steve and Mary are attracted to one another. Landers leaves on a business trip and asks Steve to look after Mary.

They dine and dance and are extremely happy until action of Mary's engagement spreads a pall over their spirits.

CHAPTER XI

After Mary and Steve had finished dinner it was possible for them, with propriety, to linger several hours at their table. At Aladdin's Lamp it was expected that the guests should stay and enjoy dancing; there was a by-product profit to this arrangement in the sale of soft drinks and, to those above suspicion, of drinks not so soft.

It grew upon Mary with increasing clearness, that she was more interested in Steve, as a person than in his dancing; it was delightful to dance with him, but she had a deeper urge to sit quietly at the table and learn more about him. Still, he didn't sit quietly at all. With the quick adaptability of their youth, it was as though tonight was the culmination of a long friendship.

"No — let's talk," she said when he invited her to dance again. "Wouldn't you rather?"

"You're the proprietor of all my desires tonight," he told her grandly. "I'll talk or sing — or even turn handsprings, if it pleases you. That is how open-minded I am."

"Aren't you ever serious?" she demanded, not in irritation, but out of curiosity.

"I'm the most serious guy on earth, but I don't show it. Know what I mean? The tear behind the smile—Laugh, Clown, Laugh."

"Now you are being silly!"

"But isn't all life a bit silly, Mary. My beautiful step-mother-to-be? When I look at you you're so charming to me that it is practically tragic. I wonder I don't break down and weep. I mean it's silly for me to get such a kick out of you then you're all sewed up with my benefactor."

The happy stimulation vanished from her blue eyes and, for an instant, she looked tired, overwrought. Steve's expression changed and he became serious.

"Forgive me, I shouldn't have said that," he said, swiftly apologetic.

"I wasn't thinking about myself," Mary returned. "What are you going to do here in New York?"

"I'm going to work for Mr. Landers—for Buck."

A little pool of a frown gathered between her brows. Troubled doubt was plain on her pretty face. "What's the matter with that?"

Steve inquired. "He wants to make me his right hand man. If I make good I may take his place later on, I think."

"Is it a good idea, Steve?"

"I don't know where else a young fellow could step into such a good opportunity. Of course, I don't know anything at all right now about all these sporting enterprises but I'll probably learn, if I'm smart enough."

"When did you graduate from college?"

"The past June. I don't know exactly what good a college education is going to do me among men like I met with Buck this afternoon, but it ought to have some advantage."

"I suppose it is a good opportunity for you, Steve, but those men with Mr. Landers this afternoon—I hate to think of you getting to be like them. I see their type around the hotel all the time. Of course, they do seem to have lots of money, and they're always well dressed and everything, but—well, you're not like they are. You're different."

He looked at her with steady eyes that tried to see through something which apparently baffled him.

"Yet Buck Landers is like these men—he's their model, their idol. You care enough about him to marry him. What's wrong with me being that kind of man? Why wouldn't you like to see me a man like—Buck?"

"I can't explain it," Mary hesitated.

"You don't think I ought to take on this job with Buck?"

She was silent for a space, and then, "No, I don't, Steve. There's something tough about it. I don't quite understand what it is, but it's all right for Mr. Landers. He's that way—but you're not. You oughtn't to."

"If I answer you straight out, it might sound like I was saying something against Buck," he stated carefully. "I can't do that and I won't. Why, he's done everything for me! When I was an orphan kid he had me taken care of and he sent me through school and college. If he was that good to me, I can't help but think he would make a fine husband to the right girl."

"But didn't your father save his life once?"

"I believe so."

"Then it seems to me Mr. Landers was only paying a just debt," Mary added quietly. "If your father hadn't saved his life, Mr. Landers wouldn't be alive today to enjoy his money—he wouldn't have any money at all. Don't think I am knocking him—I'm not. But, after all, he owed you, at least, all he has given you. Haven't you ever thought of that?"

Through a wreath of cigarette smoke Steve Moore nodded his head slowly.

"But Buck Landers shot square with me, when all is said and done," he told Mary.

"But that isn't any reason why you can't talk to me about him, is it—as a friend?"

He made a hopeless gesture, an acknowledgement of some mental strain, but his reluctance gave way.

"It's hard for me to talk to you about Buck without feeling that I'm disloyal to him. But I don't know if the truth is ever disloyal to anybody. Mary, I tell you the truth—I simply can't understand it. You're the last girl in the world I could imagine marrying. Buck, you're—well, you're just not the type. You're just a damn sweet, simple kid—"

She looked away from him for a moment. Her face had lost some of its color. Her young mouth, despite its freshness, was a little drawn. Then suddenly, with a surge of emotion, she faced Steve straight across the table.

"Steve, I don't want to marry him!"

Well, that's something about cigarettes I never knew before

I'd never thought much about what's inside a Chesterfield cigarette. But I have just been reading something that made me think about it.

Just think of this, some of the tobacco in Chesterfield—the Turkish—comes from 4000 miles away! And before it is shipped every single leaf is packed by hand. All because Turkish tobacco is so small and delicate.

Of course I don't know much about making cigarettes, but I do know this—that Chesterfields are milder and have a very pleasing aroma and taste. They satisfy—and that's what counts with me!

Britain's Record Hop Hailed as Empire Link

England to South Africa Non-Stop Flight, Which Set New Distance Mark, Part of Government Plan to Link British Possessions to Mother Country.

GIANT ARMY BOMBING PLANE USED IN FLIGHT

In making a non-stop flight from Cranwell, England, to Walvis Bay, South Africa, a distance of 5,341 miles, Squadron Leader O. R. Gayford and his co-pilot, Flight Lieutenant G. E. Nicholls, not only outdistanced the previous mark of Russell Boardman and John Polando, American fliers, by 327 miles, but also realized a fond dream of the British Air Ministry—that of linking outposts of the Empire with the motherland in a single jump. The British fliers, both officers of the Royal Air Force, undertook the flight in the regular course of service duty. Their original goal was Cape Town, but lack of fuel forced their descent just 780 miles short of their objective after they had been in the air for 57 hours and 25 minutes. The plane used in the great flight was a Fairey bomber similar to the machine that crashed on the Atlas Mountains in 1929 while attempting a flight to Cape Town. However, many improvements have been made in the craft since the tragedy. Good weather was encountered for the greater part of the flight, but a sand storm over the Sahara Desert forced the fliers 300 miles off their course. At the take-off from Cranwell, the plane carried more than 1,000 gallons of fuel in tanks set in her 82-foot wings, but when she landed at Walvis Bay, there remained only enough for two more hours of flying. Boardman and Polando, the previous distance record holders, announced that they probably would make another attempt to regain the record for the United States, possibly this year.

is every indication now he will proceed directly on to New York.

Hull Is Possibility

Around the decision of Senator Glass on the secretaryship of the treasury is expected to develop several offices in the new cabinet. Should the Virginian, now past 70, be unwilling to take over again the responsibility of the treasury, it is believed Senator Hull of Tennessee, who is regarded as a "sure shot" for the Roosevelt cabinet, would be moved into this post.

Otherwise, several positions in the Roosevelt cabinet are regarded as quite definite. These include James A. Farley, national chairman, for postmaster general; Senator Walsh of Montana for attorney general; William H. Woodin of New York for secretary of commerce and Miss Frances Perkins of New York for secretary of labor.

Senator Cutting of New Mexico, Republican Independent, is considered the next secretary of interior if he will accept. Henry Wallace of Iowa is looked upon as the best bet for secretary of Agriculture.

TIPPIN, O., Feb. 15.—The first of a series of meetings to discuss mortgage foreclosures and "penny" auctions of farm property was held here by members of the Seneca County Bar association. Calvin Spittler, president, said: "We believe a definite program can be determined which will protect debtors and prevent penny sales."

HOME-MAKING HELPS

How to Clean Home Metals

We have spoken of aluminum and the care needed to keep it bright and clean. The average home usually contains some pewter, also, and of course copper and brass, all of which must shine.

Whatever the metal to be cleaned, it is wise to wear rubber gloves when handling liquid or other polishes. In any case, cotton gloves should be used, and see to it that your clothes are protected by a large apron. Have plenty of hot water at hand for removing excess polish.

Do everything carefully after washing. Soft white tissue paper and blotting paper are both good. Half a lemon dipped in salt and applied to brass or copper will be found to clean beautifully—or vinegar with a few drops of ammonia added.

For pewter there are special non-acid polishes that should be applied with soft cloths, and the article then washed dried and repolished. Some people keep fine pieces of pewter covered with a thin film of vaseline, easily washed off when the pieces are to be used.

A piece of broken glass or an old razor blade carefully used will remove any little spots. Of course the damaged piece must then be washed, dried and polished.

For Tarnished Copper

When copper or brass is badly tarnished, a solution of oxalic acid applied with a soft woolen cloth, will remove the tarnish.

The many things wrought iron that the average home contains require special care for protection against rust. Wax diluted with oil is a splendid preventive when often applied. Tiny rust spots can be obliterated by rubbing with emery paper. Hydrochloric acid diluted with an equal amount of water is good for cleaning very rusty iron. Remove as much rust as possible by scrubbing in this solution, then wash in clear water, dry and apply a coating of machine oil. Lay aside for a few days, then polish with emery and the piece will be perfect again.

In cleaning metals that have an art finish or are lacquered, great care must be exercised. Never use acids, polishes or alcohol. Clean them with clear water and a good soft soap when necessary, but usually a slightly oiled soft cloth will be all you need to clean these metals. A bright polish may be given by careful waxing.

Mrs. Petsche, 33, is the mother of two other children, a four-year-old girl and a 16-months-old boy.

DAYTON, O., Feb. 15.—Veterans not entitled to residence in the National Military home will be "weeded out" under an order issued in Washington. Col. Fred Runkle, commandant, said.

Runkle said all veterans under 62 years of age who draw $50 or more compensation a month have no dependents and are not hospital cases, must leave.

Overcrowded conditions in veterans' homes throughout the country necessitated the order, he explained. Although only 43,000 veterans are entitled to live at the home, many continue there after being cured and some from illness to get in, it is understood. The home here has 4,358 residents.

Police Confiscate Printer In Raid

PORTSMOUTH, Feb. 15.—A telegraph-printer machine, alleged to have been used to bring in the results of horse races, was confiscated by Portsmouth police in a downtown building today.

The machine was taken in after police ordered all horse race "bookie" establishments here and in Beloitville and New Boston to close. Officers said all the places closed with the exception of the one where the machine was found.

It was merely the reaction of a kindly spirit to the sufferings of a war torn people. That moral courage was the outgrowth of a lifelong struggle with and fidelity to his own conscience. He struggled valiantly to determine what was right and when he was satisfied he had found it nothing could alter his fixed purpose of following it.

"It was said of him when he had breathed his last: 'Now he belongs to the ages.' We like to think of him as American, and he was; but in a larger sense he belongs to mankind. The work which he did was universal rather than national in character and has endeared him to all people for all time."

Quotations From Lincoln

The roll call response was "My Favorite Quotation from Lincoln." The musical part of the program included a song, "America," by the group, trombone solo, Charles Freed, accompanied by his mother, Mrs. Charles Freed, and a piano solo by Miss Anna Cook.

The room was made attractive with bouquets of spring flowers. Tea was served and Mrs. W. P. Carpenter poured.

The committee in charge of this special program was comprised of Mrs. G. R. Deming, Mrs. Frank Lease, Mrs. Marjorie Ernst, Miss Helen French, Mrs. A. H. Vaughn, Mrs. Carpenter, Miss Isabelle Mullins, Mrs. C. C. Gibson, Mrs. D. C. Rosing, Mrs. C. L. Smith and Mrs. R. A. Lamont. Mrs. Bennett of Alliance was a guest.

The next meeting will be on Feb. 21.

Banks Promise Aid To Depositors In Michigan Holiday

(The Associated Press)

DETROIT, Feb. 15.—Grating into the second day of the extraordinary bank holiday proclaimed yesterday by Governor William A. Comstock, Michigan's 900,000 bank depositors were encouraged today by promises that part of their balances would become available by tomorrow.

The Federal Reserve bank of Detroit, which remains open, is receiving millions of dollars that are being poured in from branches of the federal reserve system in Chicago and New York.

Forty million dollars was on hand today and Detroit clearing house association arranged to make $25,000,000 available to depositors Thursday. That will permit customers to withdraw not in excess of five per cent of their balances for emergency purposes before the end of the eight day holiday.

It seemed a certainty that some such plan would be put into effect for the remainder of the state, either by gubernatorial proclamation or by voluntary action on the part of the banks.

Last night, representative bankers urged upon Governor Comstock the issuance of a supplemental proclamation authorizing emergency withdrawals up to ten per cent of balances.

The governor, however, urged voluntary action. He said that "while my proclamation declaring a bank holiday was mandatory, it is not my disposition to prohibit any bank from making a sensible arrangement to permit withdrawals to meet family necessities or to allow the cashing of pay checks, and I believe many banks will do this."

Automobile Stolen

A 1930 Ford coupe, owned by Russell Stallsmith of Columbus, formerly of Salem, was stolen from Stallsmith's garage early today. The theft is being investigated by Sheriff Frank Ballantine.

BELLINGHAM, Wash. — While most sailing ships that survived windjammer days are infelicitously tied up in boneyards, or have been relegated to the junk heap, the little schooner Commodore of this port still manages to go her own way, reaping a little profit. She recently made a trip from Honolulu to this port, approximately 2,200 miles, in 18 days.

LINCOLN, Neb. During the winter-time slack period on the farm, farm machinery "clinics" will be held until spring by 23 Nebraska counties. Farmers will collect at a central point in a county and will be directed in the repair of machinery. Experts from the state college of agriculture will aid in conducting the "clinics."

rates, and write off losses. "Whatever may be the basis of valuation and rate-making, there must be a scaling down of many railroad securities."

"The question for the railroad executives, directors and security holders to decide is whether the steps taken in this direction should be compulsory or voluntary."

Need Not Complain

"Those who are responsible for present railroad management need not complain of radical or drastic government action in the near future," he concluded. "If they are unwilling even to attempt to meet their problems in a bold, forthright way through their own initiative and cooperation, they have an unrivaled opportunity to do themselves and the country a great service. They should have the guidance and help of the national and state governments in their effort."

As emergency measures, both the committee report and Smith's memorandum recommended revision of bankruptcy procedure to facilitate reorganizations, although Smith would limit this procedure to the period of the emergency.

The committee report also recommended revision of the statutory rate-making rule as an emergency measure, abandoning the old policy of trying to appraise property values, then say "that the roads are entitled to earn a fair return on the appraisal."

While opposing the policy of supporting competing transportation forms, such as waterways, with public funds, all members asserted truck and other competitors should not be handicapped to benefit the railroads.

Railroads were found remiss in not leading in the development of such new forms as automotive transport and the airplane, rather than seeking to handicap them. The committee thought regulatory jurisdiction should be extended to all forms of transportation, "but applied only to the extent necessary for public protection."

WHEN THAT FIST SWINGS
MORE FRANTIC APPLAUSE
STRANGE CHEATING

By Arthur Brisbane

(Copyright, 1933 By King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

ON FRIDAY Primo Carnera from Italy hit Schaaf from Boston and yesterday Schaaf died. Schaaf is well named; Schaaf, in German, means "sheep."

Carnera in training weighs 264½ pounds, is 6 feet 5½ inches tall, and his arms reach exactly seven feet. Schaaf weighed 207½ pounds, stood 6 feet 2 inches, his reach was 6 feet 3 inches.

His arms seven feet long, one of them weighing 40 pounds, with a hand as heavy as a horse's hoof swinging around, is as dangerous as a swinging boom on a sailboat, and when it comes at you in a straight line, with the weight of a 264½-pound body back of it, it is more dangerous.

SO CARNERA hit Schaaf on Friday and Schaaf died yesterday. One doctor performed an operation on Schaaf's skull. Another doctor, whose opinion would delight Asclepius, said Mr. Schaaf "died of natural causes."

He did, indeed. When Carnera hit you with that fist at the end of that arm, nothing could be more "natural" than dying.

However, a large section of our "civilization" not sufficiently energetic to run risks or incur debts on its own account, delights to see prize fighters in the ring, as an earlier civilization enjoyed the sight of gladiators fighting wild beasts and each other.

The commander of Columbia's planes "came valorously and attacked the enemy Peruvian planes forcing them to retire." Crowds in the street applauded frantically.

We had that frantic applause in our streets before 1918. We might not have applauded so "frantically" had we known that it was to cost us a hundred billions of dollars and the present depression.

NEW interesting kind of cheating, at Monte Carlo where the big Casino looks down on the blue Mediterranean. An international gang of 10 in collusion with croupiers marked cards for trente et quarante, "thirty and forty," with invisible ink. The swindlers were special classes that made the ink visible to them only, a new use for chemistry. Some of the gang are in jail.

Another set of cheaters long ago conspired to squeeze compartments on the roulette wheels each a fraction of an inch, making the odd number openings wider than the even numbers, then they bet on odd numbers and broke the bank.

Now when one of the numerous "banks" breaks, solemn gentlemen in white neckties come with a wheel of steel to test all wheels on the tables.

A STRANGE murder in the southern mountains. An unfortunate old woman, mother of many children, was killed by one of her sons, assisted by several brothers and one sister. The brother, head of a strange group of religious fanatics, told the jury "she had devils. I killed her so that she would go to hell for three days and then be resurrected, and saved. No court has power to judge me."

The brother was brought into court chained to a cot. The mother was strangled and trampled under foot, by frenzied fanatics.

BERNARD M. BARUCH gave excellent advice to the Senate, marvelously good advice to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. But he also advocated paying off farm mortgages with 3 per cent tax exempt bonds.

Ross County Clerks File Four Protests

CHILLICOTHE, Feb. 15.—Ross county township clerks, in session here, were on record today as protesting the use of gasoline tax money for any than road purposes; opposing the withdrawal of cities from townships; opposing the cutting down of the size of township boards, and opposing any movement to withdraw hunting license issuance privileges from township clerks.

The four questions acted on by the clerks are the subject-matter of bills now pending before the state legislature.

Carnera Barred; Repeal Of Boxing Laws Looms In New York

Death of Ernie Schaaf Heavy Blow to Fistic Realm; Continue Probe

By HERBERT W. BARKER.

Associated Press Sports Writer.

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—The death of Ernie Schaaf had brought a heavy blow to boxing in New York State today, brought about threat of repeal of the state boxing law and caused the virtual disbandment of Primo Carnera, solely upon the grounds of his gigantic size.

Governor Orders Probe

Only a few hours after Schaaf died in a hospital of a brain injury, Governor Lehman ordered a thorough investigation of his bout with Carnera in Madison Square Garden last Friday night, some legislators suggested moves toward more stringent regulations for boxing if not outright repeal of the law under which it is conducted in this state. And the state athletic commission flatly declared it would not approve a match between Carnera and Sharkey nor allow the huge Italian to box anyone less than six feet six inches tall and weighing less than 220 pounds.

Back of the commission's surprising action, wrecking the Garden's plan for a title match here in June between Sharkey and Carnera, was the venerable figure of William Muldoon.

With Gen. John J. Phelan concurring, Muldoon announced that the "super-dreadnought" class for oversized heavyweights, first organized in 1931, would be re-established and that Carnera, if he is to fight in this state at all, must pick his rivals strictly from within that division.

Muldoon declared he had opposed the Schaaf-Carnera bout from the start but that public opinion had led him to approve it against his better judgment.

Italian Barred

The effect of the commission's ruling is practically to bar the big Italian from competition in this state.

Although Jimmy Johnston, Garden boxing promoter, declined to state his reaction to the commission ruling, there were indications that the Garden had under consideration a plan to move the Sharkey-Carnera title match to some other state, possibly Massachusetts. The bout could be held there under the auspices of the Boston Garden, a subsidiary of the local corporation.

Notwithstanding rumblings at Albany, it was considered unlikely that the Boston heavyweight's death would bring about any ban on boxing. James A. Farley, chairman of the Democratic national committee and chairman of the New York state athletic commission, took the position that Schaaf's death, while deeply to be deplored, could not be construed as a reflection upon boxing.

Farley, who arrived here from Miami too late to attend the commission meeting, pointed out at the same time that fatal accidents have occurred in other sports, notably football, without causing any "great hue or cry."

Exact Cause Unknown

Meanwhile, the exact cause of Schaaf's death remained in doubt, pending thorough examination and microscopic analysis of the brain. This probably cannot be completed for ten days.

There was sharp conflict in medical opinion as to the cause of death. Dr. Charles W. Norris, chief medical examiner of New York City, declared an autopsy had revealed "absolutely no evidence" that Schaaf died of injuries received in the Carnera bout.

Dr. Bryan Stoeckey, noted brain specialist, who operated upon the stricken boxer Monday, had declared on the other hand, that cerebral hemorrhage and resulting pressure on the brain had been caused by Carnera's punches. Dr. Stoeckey's diagnosis was confirmed tentatively, at least, by Dr. Norris' assistant, Dr. Benjamin Vance, who performed the autopsy.

A police investigation developed no evidence of "criminal negligence." Assistant District Attorney James D. Daly announced after he questioned Carnera, the rival managers and handlers, the referee, Billy Cavanaugh, the judges and boxing commission officials.

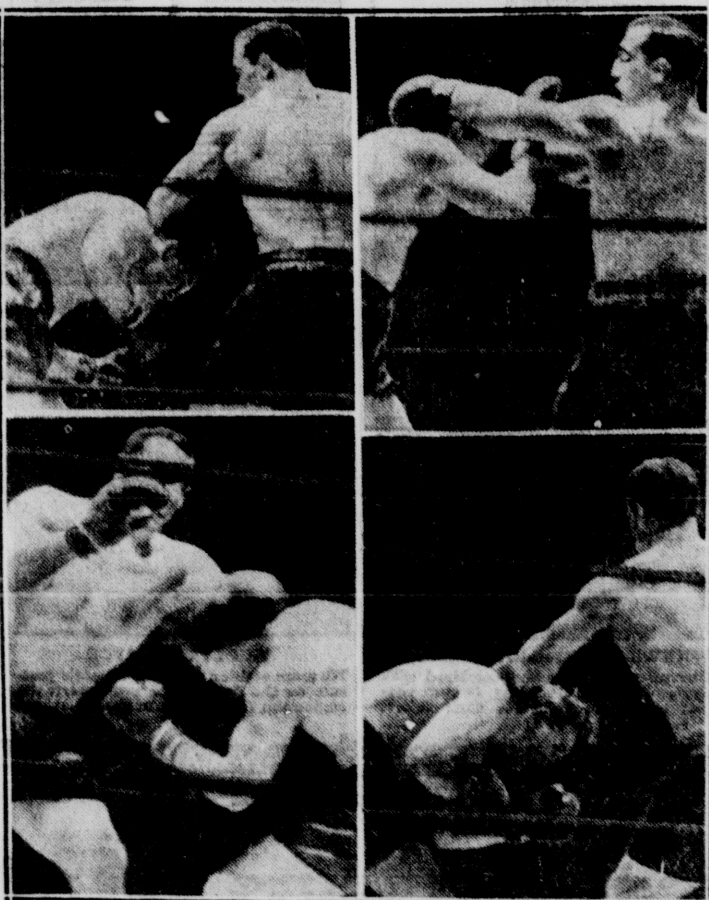

Schaaf's body was sent to Springfield, Mass., near Boston, last night. Funeral services will be held there Friday.

Wesleyan Cagers Trim Cincinnati

(By Associated Press)

CINCINNATI, Feb. 15.—Ohio Wesleyan took the measure of the University of Cincinnati, 39 to 31, last night, thereby retaining second place with Ohio university in the Buckeye conference basketball race. The Methodists grabbed the lead at the start, and finished the first half with a 25 to 11 margin. Play was rough and Ballard, Bearcat guard, and Hendricks, Wesleyan center, were removed for fouls.

How Schaaf Received Injuries

These four pictures, made during the Schaaf-Carnera bout in New York, probably account for the serious injuries suffered by the Boston heavyweight. The giant Italian frequently brought his club-like arms down on Schaaf's neck. It is thought that these blows caused the intracranial hemorrhage that necessitated the operation on Schaaf.

Simmons Prefers Old League Park To New Stadium

If Al Simmons could have his way, the Chicago White Sox would play the Cleveland Indians at the old league park at Cleveland this year instead of the new Municipal Stadium.

To Al the Cleveland stadium is simply one big reason why he might have trouble this year grinding out his third league leading hitting average in the junior circuit. Last year Simmons and his Philadelphia mates played seven of their eleven games against the Indians before Cleveland moved into the mammoth new park.

In the seven games at League park Simmons came up to the plate 34 times and galloped away with 15 hits, for an average of .441. Four homers and two doubles were included.

But in the four tilts at the new stadium Simmons batted ten times and only two singles creased off his war club. Incidentally it is not settled yet where the Indians will open the 1933 season. Somebody neglected to tend to the draining problem in the new Cleveland Stadium and efforts are being made to solve that matter as soon as possible.

Simmons in the meantime is setting out on a new policy this spring. He'll go to camp with the White Sox at Pasadena. For the last three seasons he has dodged the Philadelphia training camp at Fort Myers, doing his work at Hot Springs. The Sox management has requested that Al go west with the club, and Al is going to take a chance.

Braves Boast Edge on Age of Pitchers
If age means anything in pitching, the Boston Braves will have an edge. Their staff averages 31 years per man. Only three of their nine men are under 30 years old. Bob Brown, 21; Ed Brandt, 28 and Fred Frankhouse, 28.

Kent Needs Stadium

Shires Back Again; Battles For Post With Boston Club

The battle between Buck Jordan and Art "What-a-man" Shires for the first base post of the Boston Braves looms as one of the best on baseball's ledgers.

In fact the battle to local fans, and outsiders as well, promises to be such a merry one that they have turned to counting the days between now and spring training.

The "T" man from Texas sounded a warning note in a letter to the Braves general, Judge Emil Fuchs. It was the first time that the Braves owners had heard from Shires since last August when a leg injury sent him into voluntary retirement.

Allen Attains Fame at Mount

Lowell Allen of Salem, well known for his pole vaulting records, is one of the leading regulars on Coach Robert D. Wright's Mt. Union college basketball squad that is now leading the Ohio conference with seven victories over the strongest teams of that conference to one defeat.

Plays Great Game

The guard who can hold the high scoring Sir Louis of Akron U. scoreless from the floor through the entire game, is no slouch. Allen did that here last Friday night and at the same time popped in five goals and one free during the first half of the Mt. Union-Akron game. Allen's fine performance won the game and conference lead for Mount. He has been the most even and consistent player on the Purple team this year.

At Salem High Allen earned four letters in track, four in basketball and two in football. After attending the University of Michigan one year he entered Mount Union college. Here he has made two letters in track, two in basketball and one in football.

Allen has plenty of chances for action with his team mates yet this season. For Mount has five big games to play. Four are important Ohio conference clashes. Friday night Coach Bill Lang and his Muskies will attempt to break the Mount winning streak that has reached 22 straight on the home floor from conference opponents.

Mount will meet Western Reserve Feb. 25 in Cleveland. Ashland here March 1 and Wooster there March 4. Bob Cope, also of Salem, Mount Union center, and Himes, Muskies' six-foot four center, will be playing their third season against each other at center position Friday night when Muskingum and Mount Union meet in a major Ohio conference battle here.

It is a matter of history that the last time Muskingum played basketball here, two years ago, Mount Union had to battle through two overtime periods to defeat the New Concordites though they had dropped several games earlier in that season.

DICKEY CROWNED DISTRICT CHAMP IN RING TOURNNEY

Salem Battler Wins Title By Victory at Akron; Danielak Loses

Walter "Young" Dickey of Salem won the 112-pound championship of Northeastern Ohio, winning over Jack Gilligan of Toronto in finals of the sectional American Legion boxing tournament in Akron Tuesday night.

Dickey gained his victory by a thrilling rally in the third round after fairly even first and second stanzas. He received a gold ring emblem of the district title and won the right to compete in Ohio finals which will be held at Columbus, February 25.

Gaining a decision over "Smokey Joe" Danielak, talented Salem amateur, Eddie Adams of Kent won the district welterweight boxing championship.

Danielak, Columbiana county welterweight champ, gained the right to meet Adams in finals of the tourney by defeating Butch Burgess of Sebring in his first bout last night.

Adams kayoed Melvin "Young" Ritter, Sebring, in the third round, of the former's opening battle, then decided Danielak to gain the sectional championship.

Conley Kayoes Head

A one-round knockout of Chester Head, Sebring Negro formerly of Salem, won for Blaine Conley, former Ohio State champ, the title in the 160-pound division.

Complete results follow:
Joe Taormina, of Akron, 15-year-old 107-pounder, won a special southpaw battle from Bill Simmons, 108.

Walter Dickey, 114, of Salem, won from Jack Gilligan, 112, of East Liverpool.

Wesley Martin, 123, of Ravenna, outpointed Eugene Barrett, 126, of East Liverpool.

Elgin Boam, 134, of Akron, Leo McKinley, 155, of East Liverpool, and Swede Anderson, heavyweight of East Liverpool, all won their division championships by default.

Denison Trowned By Ohio U. Squad

(By Associated Press)

ATHENS, Feb. 15.—Ohio university trowned Denison, 43 to 21, in a Buckeye conference basketball game last night. Ohio took the lead at the start and passed the half with a 19 to 10 advantage.

Berens, Ohio center, added 19 points to his mounting season total. The result of the game leaves Wesleyan and Ohio U. still tied for second place in the conference race.

Takla Fights Here Feb. 24

Known as the "Fighting School-boy," Takla, Cleveland, will appear in the principal bout of the Veterans of Foreign Wars boxing show at the V. F. W. hall, Vine ave., Friday, February 24.

Takla claims knockout victories over Rupe Allen, Koko Joe Moore, Al Seager, Kayo Malm, Joe Passenanti, Joe Ross, Young Joe Schmeling, Sailor Marum, Johnnie Call, Tony Matt and Rip Collins and has met, among many others, Al Kindler, Eddie Bejack, Jack Deemer, Wesley Ramney and Ernie Wright.

Takla has never been knocked out; in fact, his handlers claim that his body has never yet touched the canvas.

Just 21 years old, Takla has a fine record in the pro ring racket after winning the 140-pound championship in the Golden Glove tourney at Cleveland last year.

His opponent in the Salem show will be Bobbie Bremermann of Dover, a lad of more than average ability who expects to give Takla plenty of opposition.

Springfield Quits Court Tournaments

(By Associated Press)

SPRINGFIELD, Feb. 15.—Springfield High school has called quits on basketball tournament play for its athletes.

Asserting such competition places "undue physical strain on boys of high school age," the board of education by resolution frowned on participation in the basketball tournaments this year.

Another objection given was that the state cage tournament "causes extension of the playing season so as to give little time for development of spring sports."

The Springfield High school team is one of the favorites to win the 1933 State High school basketball tournament. The resolution does not bar it from competing in that event but would forbid it from defending the title should it win.

Findlay Collegians Take Defiance Team

Heisler, Defiance guard, won scoring honors with 13 points. Garner, center, led the victors with 10. Score at the half was Defiance 18, Findlay 24.

TODAY'S RADIO PROGRAMS

The WEAF-NBC Showboat, in inserting melodrama from the stage of long ago, has been seeking to obtain a burlesque effect, rather than put on the plays without the resort to a comedy effect.

So far only a brief period is devoted to the dramas, with Charles Wainwright, in the role of Captain Henry, acting as narrator. Some of the comment of the listeners has been that they prefer the straight melodrama without humor embellishment.

WABC-CBS making plans for a series of daily Lenten services, is to present seven bishops, one each from London, Liverpool, Montreal, and Toronto and the others from the United States.

Saved Passengers in Air Fire

The quick thinking, high courage and superb airmanship of Eddie Bellande (left) and his co-pilot, Lynn Berkenkamp (both above), averted what might have been an aerial holocaust when the passenger liner they were flying from San Francisco to Los Angeles burst into flames near Bakersfield, Cal. Bellande stuck to his post at the stick and brought the plane safely to earth while Berkenkamp fought the flames. No sooner had the last passenger been removed unscathed from the plane than the wing gasoline tanks exploded.

HOOVER AWAITS LONG VACATION

Others Will Rest, Too; Curtis To Continue Political Fight

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—For President Hoover and several members of his cabinet, inauguration day will launch vacations—a long rest and change of scene after four strenuous years.

Others will return to private pursuits, losing no time in catching up on business and professions that have had to take second place to public duties in an era of "hard times."

Curtis Continues Battle
Among the group, only Vice President Charles Curtis often called a "wheel-horse" for his party, will plunge back into the thick of politics with never a breathing space.

He will immediately open up an office here and begin rounding up Republicans with the idea of marching them victoriously to the polls in 1936.

The vacationers will include Secretaries Mills, Hyde, and Stimson, if present plans materialize. Mills will be guest of President Hoover on that fishing trip through the Panama canal to California. Mrs. Mills, like Mrs. Hoover, will join her husband on the west coast. Stimson plans an automobile trip with Mrs. Stimson through the garden district about Charleston, South Carolina, thence, perhaps to the Rockies, before resuming law practice in New York.

Hyde, hankering for the tug of a fish line, has laid plans for cruising southern waters, Florida or the gulf, joining Mrs. Hyde later in their Missouri home.

Back to Business
The "back-to-business" procession will include Secretary Hurley, who will immediately open law offices in both Washington, D. C. and Tulsa, Oklahoma; Secretary Chapin, bound for Detroit's automobile row, and Secretary Wilbur, who will resume the active presidency of Stanford university at Palo Alto, California, where Herbert Hoover also will live.

Postmaster General Brown, whose home is Toledo, Ohio, and Attorney General Mitchell, of St. Paul, Minn., both attorneys, have not announced immediate plans.

"Mr. Brown has been so busy I don't think he has made any plans beyond March 4," said Mrs. Brown, and the attorney general's office made a similar report. Secretary of Labor and Mrs. Doak will, Mrs. Doak said, stay right here at "Netre Nite"—their private suburban home on a Potomac river bluff.

Extorters Held
CLEVELAND, O., Feb. 15.—Two men, who police said threatened a hat shop proprietor with ruination if he did not keep his prices to a certain level and join their organization, were convicted of extortion.

The men, Robert Lemberg, 46, and Anthony Massantino, 21, were regarded by police as racketeers and organizers of a hat cleaners' association.

THEATER Attractions

"A BILL OF DIVORCEMENT," a really splendid film, today concludes its engagement as the State theater's main attraction. Equally well known in England as in America as a stage play, it has at last been made into a screen production and boasts of a cast that is absolutely flawless.

The Cast

First, there is John Barrymore in a role that might have been made with him in mind so completely does he live the part of "Hilary." From the very first time you see him, when he comes back to his home after 15 years in an insane asylum and bursts into the room with such abundant joy only to slowly have his brilliant senses tell him no one is there, you are with him. You simply feel his hurt, his sorrow and these few happy almost childish moments he has with "Meg." Then, too, there is the return to the screen of Billie Burke, widow of Flo Ziegfeld, and once an actress in her own right. She is as lovely as ever and in this role of "Meg," the wife and mother, she is excellent. The part is sometimes a rather thankless one, yet done by Miss Burke you see how utterly helpless she is, and your sympathy goes out to her as well as to the husband.

Heppburn Is Great

Katharine Heppburn, the new screen sensation, in the part made famous on the stage by Katharine Cornell, that of the daughter, does outstanding work. She is not beautiful, not even pretty, but she has a strange, unusual power about her to make you forget merely features in her personality. As the mother, almost rough, in her ways girl in the beginning of the film to the tragic and understanding creature she is at the climax—she is splendid. She takes hold of the situations that hold the others in the family helpless and works them out as they should be—she understands her father at times when her mother cannot and, as it were, puts together again the puzzle life has made for them.

Then there are David Manners, Elizabeth Patterson and Paul Cavanagh—all fine in supporting roles.

"THE BILLION DOLLAR SCANDAL," a new melodrama dealing with the expose of a nation-wide swindle will play at the State theater Thursday only.

Robert Armstrong heads the cast in the role of Emmer Panto, who, as a humble man, suddenly becomes a man of the hour and the "billionaire of 120 millions" when he tells through the columns of the newspapers, the details of a gleaming scheme, the plotting of which he overheard in his gym class for business men.

Story of Three Convicts
The story first picks up Fingers in the penitentiary, where he and his two pals, Ratsy (Jimmy Gleason) and the Kid (Warren Heimer), are completing their terms. When they are released, Armstrong, being skilled as a master, is hired by a noted gambler. He overhears several stock tips and suddenly finds himself rich enough to realize his ambitions for him and his brother to mingle with the "best people."

The younger brother (Frank Albertson) becomes infatuated with the gambler's daughter (Constance Cummings) and to break this romance the father, Frank Morgan, "breaks" the ex-convict.

Seeks Revenge
However, when a newspaper editor induces Armstrong to tell all he knows, relative to an immense swindle headed by Morgan, he accepts, as an avenger upon his former employer.

The story comes to a most unexpected climax following an investigation by a Senate committee.

OUR READERS

"POLITICAL COWARDICE"

Editor, The News:
Councilman Calladine was the only member of the Salem City Council who showed the courage of his convictions in the action the Council took in the reduction of its expenditures and through the upine action of the Council in the face of the critical financial situation confronting us as a city, we have a small example of the same avarice, selfishness and utter lack of conception of the impossible burdensome tax situation under which we are laboring. That is better displayed by the Congress and Senate of the United States today.

One of the greatest contributing causes for the present unparalleled and catastrophic situation, so vitally affecting every one of us is the burden of taxation and notwithstanding the fact that business men thoroughly conversant with the critical situation confronting us, wholeheartedly worked and cooperated with the finance committee of the City Council in an effort to reduce our local taxes, our city government responds by reducing the salaries of a few city employees and does nothing towards relieving the tax payer by substantially reducing the salaries of city officials who are drawing the highest compensation with the result that, as Councilman Calladine states, "no material advantage can be gained in such action."

With hundreds of hard working breadwinners—the men who pay the taxes from which these city officials derive their salaries, reduced from 25 per cent to 40 per cent in hourly rates as well as the fact that their working hours have also been greatly cut—in fact, with many of our citizens without employment of any kind, the Council responds to a cry for relief by a paltry reduction of salaries and makes no move towards a reduction in other expenditures including salaries of city officials, most of whom occupy positions that do not entail as much work in a week as the average shop worker does in a day.

It is time that the tax payers of the City of Salem, practically all of whom have seen their incomes dwindle to a point that they can barely afford the necessities of life—who have been compelled to deprive themselves and their families of almost everything but life's barest necessities, in order to meet their fixed charges in the way of taxes and insurance, should awaken to the fact that while they have suffered and are suffering these deprivations, we are continuing to support office holders on the same scale that we did before this disastrous depression struck us. The action of the Council clearly indicates that they have no clear conception of the desperate situation faced by the tax payers of this community.

A TAX PAYER.
